"Quantum Select International's re-branding represents our evolution and direction," said President, Shashi G. Mulani. "Clients and employees have already gravitated toward us because of our global presence and work.

It makes sense for us to adopt international as part of our company name. This change is a logical step in our succession and gives us an umbrella under which we can continue to expand our products, services, and locations during our next phase of growth and development. We are so much more than a consulting firm and this represents an important step to better communicate our value proposition."

"Our new brand identity is a logical step that communicates to both current customers and potential customers that we continue to provide services that consistently outpace our competitors," said Stefanus V. Siauwtika, Director of Quantum Select International. "Our new identity is the fact that we're an innovative and forward-looking company with a commitment to ensure the success of every client we service."
